Conditions Of Employment

Two working meanings

Personnel policies and practices (rules and procedures that prescribe how employees are to behave or how they will be managed)

Working conditions (other features and benefits of the employee's work environment)

Workplace Changes

Workplace changes that trigger management's obligation to bargain:

- ☐ Working conditions
- ☐ Personnel policies and practices
- ☐ Affecting bargaining unit employees
- ☐ Except policies...
 - ✓ Provided for by statute
 - ✓ Relating to classification
 - ✓ Relating to political activities

Workplace Changes

- ☐ Must notify Union – before implementation
- ☐ Communicate what changes are intended and when they would become effective
- ☐ If there is no response, implement on the specified date
- ☐ If the Union asks to negotiate, normally bargain to completion before affecting the proposed change

Workplace Changes

Do Not

- Assume that there is no obligation to notify the Union because you are exercising a management right

Do Not

- Notify the Union at the last minute, without giving a reasonable amount of time to consider the change

Do Not

- Implement before reaching agreement

Do Not

- Make changes without notification in hopes that the Union won't notice

Past Practice

- ☐ Pertains to condition of employment
- ☐ Unwritten
- ☐ Consistently practiced over extended period of time
- ☐ Known about and accepted by both parties
- ☐ Not contrary to law or regulation
 - Note: Change in practice triggers bargaining obligation

Formal Discussions

- ☐ One or more management official and one or more employee or representative; and
- ☐ Concerns a grievance or any personnel policy or practice or other general condition of employment -- not individual concerns:
 - ✓ Union must be invited
 - ✓ Union selects their representative
 - ✓ Union allowed to comment during meeting
 - ✓ Cannot disrupt meeting
- ☐ Not normal shop talk

Formal Discussions

- ❑ DISCUSSION - Can be one-way
- ❑ FORMAL INDICATORS
 - ✓ First-level supervisor or higher level management
 - ✓ Location of meeting
 - ✓ Length of meeting
 - ✓ How meeting was called (spontaneously or scheduled in advance)
 - ✓ Written formal agenda
 - ✓ Mandatory attendance
 - ✓ Manner conducted (attendance & comments noted)

Investigative Interviews

Weingarten Rights

When an employee is called to an investigatory interview and has reasonable belief that disciplinary action could result, the employee has the right to request union representation

Investigative Interviews

Elements defining investigative interviews

Nature of interview is investigatory

Employee reasonably believes disciplinary action could result

Employee requests
union representation

Investigative Interviews

("WEINGARTEN RIGHT")

- ☐ Not like Miranda rights
 - ✓ -Check the labor agreement
- ☐ Union can participate in discussion but cannot answer for the employee
- ☐ Not applicable to performance counseling or issuance of notice of discipline

("WEINGARTEN RIGHT")

- ❑ If the employee requests a representative, supervisor may:
 - ✓ Simply end the meeting and not call in a union rep
 - ✓ Temporarily stop the meeting long enough to obtain union representation
 - ✓ Offer the employee the alternative to continue w/o union representation or forgo having a meeting to make his/her points
 - ✓ Remove the employee's "reasonable belief" by stating that the employee will not be disciplined

Read each situation and decide if it is (a) a formal discussion; (b) a Weingarten examination; (c) neither; or (d) both. Be prepared to explain your answer.

Weingarten or Formal Discussion?

1. An employee is called into an interview with a security officer investigating the possible theft of government property. The officer asks the employee where she worked the date the property disappeared. The employee asks for a union representative.

2. A meeting held with employees to discuss a new dress code by a manager instructed to do so from higher-level management. It lasts 20-25 minutes. Other managers were present. Most, if not all, employees attended, but whether it was mandatory is unclear.

3. An employee who has elected to represent himself meets with management to present his grievance regarding lack of overtime consideration IAW overtime procedures.

Weingarten or Formal Discussion?

4. Union representative directed by the new commander to discontinue attendance at his weekly command staff meetings. There is nothing in writing allowing it.

5. A first line supervisor holds an impromptu meeting of bargaining unit employees to reinforce existing shop safety procedures.

6. A supervisor meets with a unit employee to find out why he is late for the third time in two weeks. Midway through the meeting, the employee requests union representation.
